

Throughout my career, I have had the chance to manage a variety of projects while holding roles in the event management and print industries. These opportunities have allowed me to develop and build teams that successfully accomplish company goals while also supporting their personal growth.

My drive for problem solving and goal setting put me in the perfect spot for project management. I spent my early career at metroConnections where I supported Target and gained vast experience in client communication, crisis management and team leadership. After this I worked as an event manager for Carlson Wagonlit supporting Apple. Most recently I was a project manager for Imagine Print Solutions, leveraging my gained experiences to support our largest clients and most complicated projects. In each of these arenas I was provided the opportunity to manage, develop and grow a team for my support.

Motivated by my experiences, I founded Wise Fool LLC as a means to find ways the new workforce can remain engaged, excited and motivated in their daily careers. Wise Fool has experience providing training sessions for over 50 Fortune 500 Companies and can create custom programs dedicated to the success of an employee and their employer. Our experts provide the texts, training and speaking engagements needed to shape the new workforce of today. With our Wise Fool tools in hand, companies will better understand their workforce and the employees will better understand their company to a mutual benefit.
